I have always been in education and employment ever since I left school, at first it was an engineering apprenticeship, then a computer engineering BTEC and now a level 5 diploma in full stack development. Whilst studying I have gone from being a waiter to a bartender, then to a warehouse operator and now I am a counter-balance and reach truck operator. I am no stranger to hard work and once I have a goal in mind, I tend to strive for it until it is achieved, and I am keep getting my foot in the door of web development and start expanding my skills. I believe I am, a good employee who works hard, is punctual and is a good team player. I have a logical way of thinking around most tasks, the efficiency when executing them and a need to be challenged in my day to day life. If I'm not being challenged I believe that I could be doing more which is why I enjoy programming so much.

Outside of work I enjoy outdoor activities such as camping and hiking, I'm not much of an indoor person and when it comes to spare time, I spend most of it outside.
